Good Animal Care

Vaccinations are created to prevent disease. Just like when you were a child you were vaccinated against various disease, puppies and kittens also need vaccinations. These young animals begin their vaccinations between 6-8 weeks of life. Yes, these young animals are only 2 months old. Each requires a series of 3-4 vaccinations to obtain protection against diseases. When these animals reach 3 months of age each can be rabies vaccinated.

In addition, kittens and puppies should also be dewormed every six months to decrease the parasite load in the system. This routine procedure along with dental cleaning and spaying & neuter are the responsibility of all pet owners.

Each pet should have good food and water everyday. They should have shelter from the heat and cold weather.

When a puppy or kitten grows into an adult dog or cat, they require annual vaccinations to continue protecting them against diseases throughout their lives.
